Welcome To BGSU

A warm welcome to all Bowling Green fans and to our guests from Ball State University. This is also an occasion to highlight our special relationship with the parents of BGSU students.

An improving football team with one of the potentially best offensive backfields in University history, the soundest defense in years, and performances by one of this country's finest marching bands add up to another memorable football afternoon.

On one of your visits to the campus, I hope that you will take a walking tour — on your own or with a regularly scheduled tour which leaves from the Admissions Office in McFall Center at 11 a.m. each Saturday, and at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. on weekdays (late September through early June). You will find architecture of interest, as well as a wide variety of art. If you have not visited our new Musical Arts Center with its superb concert facilities, I invite you to do so and to return for one of the scheduled events there. Outstanding theatre, lectures, seminars, and exhibits combine to make Bowling Green State University an exciting place throughout the year.

Ours is a campus which we hope you will visit and enjoy often.

Doyt L. Perry Field

This year marks the 15th season of football at Doyt L. Perry Field, named after the man who coached Bowling Green football teams to a 77-11-5 record from 1955 through 1964.

During the 10-year period from 1956 through 1965, with Perry in charge for nine of those years, the Falcons compiled the best record among the nation's major colleges, 77-12-4. Perry is retired now but remains a staunch supporter of Bowling Green athletics.

The east side of Perry Field includes dressing rooms, equipment and training facilities, and 30 offices of the Athletic Department. Located on the stadium's west side are storage areas and the attractive offices of the Falcon Club.

The football field itself is tenderly cared for by administrative assistant Ken Schoeni and his staff. The turf is comprised of 20 percent Norlea rye grass and three strains of Kentucky bluegrass — 40 percent Marion, 20 percent Newport and 20 percent Delta. Eighteen hundred pounds of phosphorus, pot ash and nitrogen fertilizer are spread on the gridiron during the year before the entire process starts over each June when the field is re-seeded.

Passing Cardinals Impede Falcon MAC Hopes

Despite last week's frustrating 7-3 loss at Miami, the Bowling Green Falcons are still very much in the Mid-American Conference title chase, but to stay in contention, they must get by a pass-oriented Ball State team this afternoon.

The Miami loss broke BGSU's three-game winning streak and dropped the Falcons' record to 3-5 overall and 3-2 in the Mid-American Conference. To win their first MAC Championship in 15 years, the Falcons must win their final three games — they play at Central Michigan next week, and then after a week off, close out their schedule at home against Ohio University on November 22. BG also needs some help; Western Michigan must lose two of its three remaining games — at home with Ohio University today, at Miami next Saturday, and at home with Central Michigan two weeks from today.

The Falcons are handicapped by the fact that they play just eight league games, and Western Michigan plays nine. If both teams lose two games, the Broncos will take the championship.

No team has ever won the MAC Championship with two losses, and 24 of the 33 champions have been undefeated in league play. But then again, there has never been a year like this one with balance throughout the league. Look at the bottom of the standings in the lower right corner of this page. Toledo (1-6-0) 1 5 0 Toledo was the team picked by many to win the championship this year.

Five teams still have a legitimate chance of overtaking Western Michigan (5-1) for the MAC title. Ohio University (4-2) and Central Michigan (4-2) have the best shot because they both play nine games and both have games remaining against WMU. Northern Illinois (2-2) and Miami (2-2) are both still in the race, but they need a lot of help since each of them plays just seven league games.

Today is the fourth time since the MAC expanded to 10 teams that all teams are playing league games the same day. In other action, Ohio University travels to Western Michigan, Central Michigan is at Eastern Michigan, Northern Illinois visits Kent State, and Toledo hosts Miami.

In the same pre-season media poll that picked Toledo as the favorite in the MAC, Ball State was tabbed for third. Coached by former Bowling Green star Dwight Wallace, the Cardinals have played well for the most part this year, but a pair of close losses, and a blowout against Miami have put them on the verge of elimination from the MAC Championship — a title they won in 1976 and 1978.

Ball State comes into today's game with a 3-4 overall record and a 3-3 league mark. BSU has defeated Northern Illinois (18-17) and Eastern Michigan (26-0) on the road and Toledo (27-7) at home, but they lost their season-opener at Central Michigan (21-17), got blasted by Miami (42-9) and lost a tough, 17-15 decision to Western Michigan last Saturday.

Training 14-7 in the fourth quarter, the Cardinals rallied to take a 15-14 lead over WMU with 4:33 left on a 15 yard pass from Mark O'Connell to Tim Clary, and an O'Connell to Clary PAT pass. Moments later, the BSU defense had Western pinned on its own 22 yardline with a third down and nine, but a 55 yard wingback reverse, option pass set up a field goal for the Broncos with 1:15 left as they maintained first place.

To beat Ball State today, the Falcons must contain O'Connell. The 6'3" senior has completed 53 of 159 passes this year for 810 yards. His favorite targets are small (5'7", 165), but exceptionally quick split end Stevie Nelson (18 catches for 220 yards), running back Ken Currin (17-100) and tight end Ray Hinton (15-112).

Leading the Cardinal ground attack is junior fullback Mark Bornholdt. The number two scorer in the nation behind Billy Sims last year, Bornholdt has rushed 104 times for 415 yards and six touchdowns in BSU's first seven games this year.

Bowling Green State University

Tradition and innovation flourish side by side at Bowling Green State University. As the University entered its 70th year this fall, the campus and the curriculum showed the school's contemporary outlook.

Bowling Green is a residential university with more than 16,000 students, half of whom live in the 21 residence halls and small group living units on campus. The contemporary and traditional dormitories complement the gracious colonial architecture of some of the small residence houses.

Because the campus is residential, the University has made it a policy to provide recreational opportunities for its student-residents. Outdoor recreation areas on the school's 1,247 acres are numerous. An extensive intramural sports program is carried on using the many outdoor fields. The campus has 22 tennis courts and an 18-hole golf course.

The University's sports facilities include Doyt L. Perry Field, with seating for 23,272 spectators; Anderson Arena with a capacity for 5,200; the Ice Arena, where 3,500 fans can watch Bowling Green's nationally ranked hockey team; Whittaker Track, a nine-lane track with a new all-weather rubberized surface; and, Steller Field, which seats 2,000 for baseball games.

For indoor recreation the University completed the Student Recreation Center in 1978. The $9.35 million complex has two swimming pools (one Olympic size); a multi-purpose area for such sports as basketball, tennis and volleyball; handball and squash courts; a dance studio and an elevated jogging track.

The Musical Arts Building opened last fall. The $8.75 million structure contains classrooms, practice rooms, offices, a recital hall and a larger concert hall with a capacity for an audience of 850.

The nine-story University Library towers over the center of campus. An abstract mural by Donald Drumm stretches from the top of the library's front to the base of a graceful stairwell inside the building's main entrance. A similar mural adorns the back of the building.

One of the University's services located in the library is the Center for Archival Collections. Books, newspapers, photographs and other records attract researchers to the Center's three collections: the Northwest Ohio Collection, the University Archives and the Great Lakes Research Center.

A roomy, new Alumni Center at the east end of campus is a home away from home for the University's many alumni. It houses the Alumni and Development Offices and an art gallery. The building, which opened in 1976, offers space for meetings of campus and off-campus groups.

Prospective students are interviewed in McFall Center, the former University Library, renovated during 1976-77. The Graduate College, admissions and other administrative offices, an assembly room and an impressive art gallery are located in the Center. The high ceilings, arched windows and mellow woodwork contrast with the airy and open look of contemporary floor covering, furnishings, and other decor.

Head Coach Denny Stolz

Denny Stolz enters his fourth year as head coach at Bowling Green, and for the first time will be working with players recruited solely by him and his coaching staff.

The former Big 10 Coach of the Year has compiled a 66-50-1 record in his first 12 years as a college head coach, including 13-21 in three years with the Falcons. He rejuvenated the football programs at Alma (Mich.) College and Michigan State by producing two unbeaten seasons at Alma, in 1967 and 1968, and the best record in eight years at Michigan State, 7-3-1 in 1974.

"I remember sitting with a group of guys I went to high school with, discussing what careers we were going into," Stolz recalls. "I told them the great thing about coaching was that you have Christmas every Saturday during the fall because you always have a game to look forward to.

"I've never looked at coaching as a job. It's been too much fun. I enjoy the strategy and the competition the game provides, but even more, I enjoy the relationships with other coaches and players that come from football. I think that's an aspect of coaching people don't realize. I really get a kick out seeing the kids I've coached in the past, having a chance to sit down and talk with them. In most jobs, you try to avoid half the people you deal with. In my job, I only wish I had more time to see everyone I'd like to."

A native of Lansing, MI, Stolz grew up in Mason, Mich. and earned a bachelor's degree in 1955 from Alma College, where he played quarterback. His first coaching assignment came at Haslett (MI) High School, where he was 40-13-3 in nine years. Stolz then returned to Alma as head coach, and taking over a program that had produced only three wins in four years, led the team to a 34-16 record in six years.

Denny became defensive coordinator at Michigan State in 1971, was named head coach in 1973, and again turned around a foundering program. By 1974, the Spartans had risen to 7-3-1 overall and 6-1-1 in the Big 10. The 1974 team finished in the top 18 in both wire service polls, and Stolz was named Big 10 Coach of the Year. He resigned from Michigan State following the 1975 season, and became the 12th head coach in Bowling Green history on Dec. 15, 1976.

Stolz and wife Cena have a son, Doak, 20, and two daughters, Dawn, 19 and Denise, 12. Denny celebrated his 46th birthday on Sept. 12, the eve of Bowling Green's home opener against Eastern Michigan.

Falcon Football Facts

Alpha Tau Omega Victory Bell —

Members of ATO fraternity have rung 'Old Alpha' after each Falcon touchdown and conversion since the start of the 1961 season. Old Alpha fell over a cliff on the way home from the Utah State game in 1970, sidelining it for the remaining eight games that year. But it was repaired in time for the 1971 season, and Old Alpha's clapper has been clanging ever since.

Ay Ziggy Zoomba —

No one is sure who wrote Bowling Green's unofficial fight song, or even what 'ay ziggy zoomba' means. No one might care, either, except the song became famous when former All-Pro defensive back Mike Weger sang it in the film version of George Plimpton's "Paper Lion."

Bowl Games —

Bowling Green's only post-season appearance came in 1961 when the Falcons lost to Fresno State, 36-6, in the Mercy Bowl. The game was a memorial to Cal Poly players killed in a plane crash only a few hours after their 50-6 loss at Bowling Green in 1960. The 1981 champions of the Mid-American Conference and Pacific Coast Athletic Association will play in the inaugural California Bowl next year.

Colors —

Burnt Orange and Seal Brown have been the school colors since 1914. Credit for the selection goes to Leon Winslow, an industrial arts professor who admired the orange and brown colors of a woman's hat while on a bus ride to Toledo.

Dad of the Year —

Each year on Parents' Day at Doyt L. Perry Field, a father of a Bowling Green football player is honored by members of the team. The 1979 recipient of Dad of the Year was Harold Wright, father of quarterback Mike Wright. The new Dad of the Year will be honored Nov. 1 at the Ball State game.

Falcons —

Bowling Green teams were nicknamed 'Normals' or 'Teachers' until 1927 when Ivan "Doc" Lake ('23), managing editor and sports editor of the Bowling Green Sentinel-Tribune, suggested the change. Lake had just read an article on falconry in which falcons were described as "the most powerful bird for their size and often attacked birds two or three times their size."

Freddie Falcon —

Long before the San Diego Chicken put feathered mascots in vogue, Freddie was building enthusiasm for Bowling Green athletics. A university student, Freddie leads cheers at home athletic events during the fall and winter, but remains anonymous to the student body until he is beheaded at the last home basketball game.

Homecoming —

Also an idea of Ivan "Doc" Lake, Homecoming was first held in 1922 when the Falcons and Toledo played to a 6-6 tie. Bowling Green is 32-16-9 in 57 previous Homecoming games, but has lost three in a row going into this year's Homecoming against Kent State. The Falcons' last HC victory came against Kent State, 17-13, in 1976.

A SATURDAY SPECIAL

QB's Make Preparation Pay Off

The weekly Quarterback Quiz is ready to begin in the classroom of the eminent Professor Palsgrove. His five students take out paper and pencil, and look to the front of the room as Dr. Palsgrove places his hands on his head, then stretches his arms out straight. His five pupils scribble their answers, and Dr. Palsgrove, who still hasn't said a word, prepares for the second question. He crosses his hands, then points both arms to the left while bending his left knee. The answers are written, and Dr. Palsgrove goes on to pantomime 18 more questions.

'Dr.' Palsgrove, alias third-string Bowling Green quarterback Dayne Palsgrove, is no Ph.D. He's no Marcel Marceau, either. But every Thursday at 2:45 p.m. in the football offices on the east side of the stadium, he is the teacher and Bowling Green's five other quarterbacks are his students. Palsgrove's main job each Saturday is to stand on the sidelines and relay to the quarterback, through body language, the play that Coach Denny Stolz wants called. From a distance, you'd swear that Palsgrove was Baltimore's Wild Bill Hagy, spelling out O-R-I-O-L-E-S with his arms and legs.

So that he won't confuse anyone on Saturday, Palsgrove goes through 20 signals on Thursday, and the quarterbacks write the corresponding answers. They might not get A plusses on Thursday, but they'd better on Saturday.

Palsgrove's mid-week test isn't the most important aspect of preparing Bowling Green's quarterbacks for a game. But it's one of the many little pieces that go into making the puzzle fit by 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

This particular week, Bowling Green was getting ready for its Homecoming game with

Greg Taylor

Kent State, trying to extend a winning streak to three games. Quarterback Greg Taylor had scored twice the previous Saturday to help Bowling Green beat Toledo, and on Sunday the quarterbacks and running backs got together, as they always do, to watch the game films. But by Monday, Toledo was forgotten.

Stolz, who works extensively with the quarterbacks, met with all six QB's in the staff room at 2:45. The small room has chalkboards on three sides. One has a list of Bowling Green offensive plays, another is used for showing pass coverages, and the third, the one Stolz was most interested in, showed the five defenses that Kent State will most likely use. Below those defenses is a list of Bowling Green's offensive plays. Some are capable of working against any defense. Others don't have a prayer against certain defenses. So when Taylor or Endres get a play from Palsgrove that won't work against a certain defense, they have to recognize it and be ready to audibize at the line of scrimmage.

"Understanding this stuff," as Stolz points to the chalkboard in mild disgust, "takes up 90 percent of our practice time. But it's only 10 percent of our game plan. It's tedious; it's time-consuming; but it's necessary."

Watching Stolz work with his quarterbacks off the field is like watching a teacher add a new unit in chemistry or calculus one week before finals. Pep talks will wait for Saturday. On Monday, there's a lot to learn in a short time.

"In this series, what can we run against this kind of defense, Dave?" Stolz asks of quarterback Dave Endres.

"Eight and nine," Endres replies.

"That's right," Stolz says, looking at his watch and knowing he's running out of time. "Greg, do you understand the concept?"

Taylor nods in the affirmative.

Endres, Taylor and Palsgrove — the top three quarterbacks — go next door to watch films of the Kent State-Central Michigan game while the others head downstairs to get dressed for practice. Five minutes into the film, Central Michigan scores a touchdown on an option play. Stolz shows the play nine times to his quarterbacks. They'll know better than Central Michigan why that play worked against Kent State.

"All those films start looking alike after awhile," Endres says. "You look at them every day, sometimes twice a day, and the teams blend together. They all look like each other."

The three quarterbacks leave Stolz' office at 3:20 and get ready for practice. For 90 minutes they run Bowling Green's offense against the scout team (third and fourth team players) that has been aligned to resemble Kent State's defense. The routine varies little from day to day, although Taylor, Endres and Palsgrove all agree that Tuesdays are the worst. In addition to the 45 minutes spent in meetings and watching films, and nearly two hours in practice, the top three quarterbacks return to Stolz' office each Tuesday at 7 p.m. to watch more films. This is part of the glamour that big-time college quarterbacks experience every week.

"I'd like to believe the quarterbacks are totally prepared by Saturday morning," Stolz says. "We have enough time to prepare them. It's just scheduling that time so they get the most out of it. It's difficult to be in Greg Taylor's position, for example. He's young and inexperienced, and he needs time to adjust and learn. But he's the quarterback, and you can't afford to give the quarterback all the time he needs."

This season hasn't been easy on any of the Falcons' quarterbacks. Taylor and Endres, each with their specific abilities, have been shuffled into the line-up depending on who is moving the team at the time. Palsgrove, meanwhile, patiently waits on the sidelines.

"It's been a difficult year," admits Endres, who plays primarily when the Falcons need a pass completion. "I come into the game on third down when we need a 15-yard pass, and they rush everybody including the water-boy. It's sort of like being a pinch-hitter. I try to stay loose and warm, but it's hard. About the only time I'm loose is at the end of the half and the end of the game if we're going to run our two-minute offense."

"The only thing that bothers me is the pressure," Taylor adds. "If I make a mistake, it's all over the paper — 'Taylor Messes Up,'" and mid-size at the very same time.

How the new Chevy Citation

No mirrors, no wires, nothing up our sleeve. Citation really is both compact and mid-size. Watch closely.

Compact on the outside.

Outside, Citation measures only 15 feet bumper to bumper. That's trim enough to fit into 3/4 of a parking space.

Mid-size on the inside.

No hocus-pocus. What we did was to mount Citation's engine sideways, giving you enough room inside to seat five adults comfortably. With space left over in the hatchback that could even surprise Houdini. There's also a removable shelf panel that makes every bit of cargo just seem to disappear.

You've got to drive it to believe it.

Of course, there's a lot more about Citation than meets the eye.

- There's its front-wheel-drive traction on wet roads, through snow and in mud.
- The way its ride can make a stretch of road seem a whole lot smoother.
- Its impressive acceleration.
- And yet still, in the hatchback, wagon-like convenience.

Why not see your Chevy dealer about buying or leasing the new Chevy Citation. You might be amazed. It could be just the car you have in mind.

It's a whole new kind of compact car.

CHEVY CITATION

Catch that Pepsi Spirit.

2nd Qtr.	3rd Qtr.	4th Qtr.	Final

In simple terms, why every Honda has front-wheel drive.

Have you noticed how more and more car manufacturers are switching to front-wheel drive these days?

We're not surprised. We knew the advantages of front-wheel drive a long, long time ago.

In fact, only Honda has sold all its cars in the U.S. with front-wheel drive and a transverse-mounted engine. (Not to mention having sold more than anyone else too.)

So just what are the advantages?

For a start, we've designed a car that's smaller on the outside but with more than enough room inside for both driver and passengers.

This is partly due to the fact that there's no driveshaft running through the passenger compartment. So your passengers have more foot and legroom.

Eliminating the driveshaft also reduces another problem. Because the driveshaft can be a source of noise and vibration. But the advantages of front-wheel drive don't stop at improved space utilization and comfort.

Front-wheel drive puts more of the weight on the front driving wheels. That means better traction.

And since driving power is applied in the direction the car is being steered, it helps you through the turns.

We could go on.

But the only way to really appreciate our front-wheel drive is to test-drive a Honda yourself.

The Civic. The car that was named Motor Trend magazine's Import Car of the Year.

The Accord. Our luxury car.

And the Prelude. Our idea of a sports car.

They all have front-wheel drive.

So if that's what you're looking for in a car, it's worth remembering that Honda is out in front all the way.

HONDA

We make it simple.

Today's Band Program

The Bowling Green State University Falcon Marching Band would like to extend a warm welcome to the parents of present, former, and future BGSU students. We hope your weekend is enjoyable and memorable.

The Falcon Marching Band will open their halftime show this afternoon to music of Chuck Mangione — "The Legend of the One-

Eyed Sailor." Our second selection features the Falcon Twirlers in a dazzling routine to "Morning Dance" from the popular group Spyro Gyro. The Falcon Marching Band will conclude their performance to the strains of the "Love Theme" and the "Main Theme" from "Star Trek: The Motion Picture."

as he pretends to scan a headline.

Stolz, a quarterback himself at Alma College, can't make this game easy for three inexperienced quarterbacks. But his patience rarely wavers. At Toledo, Taylor changed a play at the line of scrimmage when he should have left it alone.

"When you're in short yardage or the wishbone, never change the play, Greg Taylor," Stolz says, talking like a teacher, not a tyrant. Stolz grins and tells Taylor, "Greg, don't make up any more plays for me, ok?"

Taylor returns the smile, and agrees.

Later in the same meeting, Stolz diagrams a play that requires his quarterbacks to block. "Now I know this might be impossible for you guys," he says, "but it would be nice if you would turn around and block somebody on this play." The snickering starts, and Stolz tones down his request. "How about just getting in their way?"

As the final preparations for Kent State are made, Stolz gets into specifics. Kent State blitzes more than any other team, he's been telling his quarterbacks all week. By Friday, Stolz makes sure the quarterbacks know who will be blitzing, when they'll be coming, and most importantly, what to do when it happens.

Nothing is left to chance. Even on road trips, Stolz takes a reel of film for his quarterbacks to watch on Friday night. Saturday morning, after Palsgrove has reviewed the sideline signals with Taylor and Endres, they're ready to quit preparing and start playing.

Late in the first quarter against Kent State, Taylor put Bowling Green up 10-0 with a 25-yard run, his longest run of the year. He avoided Kent's blitzing defense to finish the game with 92 yards rushing, never missed a signal from Palsgrove, and the result was Bowling Green's third win in a row, 24-3.

Those are the Saturdays that make six days of preparation worth the effort.

THE FALCON CLUB JOIN TODAY!

Dear Falcon Fan:

We share with you an enthusiastic desire for winning athletics at Bowling Green. In order to sustain a winning program, however, we must meet the financial challenges of athletic excellence.

Falcon Club membership offers you an opportunity to get behind our teams and coaches. Falcon Club donations have been the salvation of our program, and to win in 1980 will require a supreme Falcon Club effort.

I am interested in learning more about the Falcon Club and its activities.

Baarman, Merritt Return To Spark Turnaround

After the Falcons lost their first four games this season, the coaching staff could have panicked and made wholesale changes in the line-up. They did not. Coach Stolz and his staff continued to express confidence in their team, but they did make a couple of personnel changes, inserting seniors Joe Merritt and Jim Baarman into the starting line-up in the secondary.

These changes alone did not spark the turnaround that took the Falcons from being a winless cellar dweller to a legitimate Mid-American Conference contender in just three weeks, but they were a factor. "We became a more consistent secondary with the addition of Joe and Jim in the line-up," defensive backfield coach Kit Cartwright says. "In the first four games we were breaking down from time to time."

Merritt and Baarman are not new to the starting line-up. The two seniors were both regulars last year, but had lost their starting jobs in spring ball.

Merritt, who came to Bowling Green from Middletown, became the starting strong safety midway through his freshman season. He held that position until he suffered a knee injury against Kent State in the middle of his sophomore season. He was in and out of the line-up for the rest of the 1978 season and all of last year, depending on the knee.

Then a week before the end of spring practice this year, the knee went out again, so he had minor surgery. Merritt began a rehabilitation program immediately, but was still less than 100 percent when fall camp opened. "I was mentally ready to go right away and anxious to play," Merritt says, "but the knee was still a little weak." Consequently, Merritt dropped to third on the depth chart.

Baarman came to Bowling Green from Grand Rapids Junior College, near his hometown of Wyoming, Michigan. After playing safety at Grand Rapids, he was switched to cornerback when he arrived in BG for spring practice in 1979. Last year he started three games early in the season, and then after missing three games with a bruised kidney, he returned to start the final two games. "Jim was our utility back last year," Cartwright says. "He was our fifth best back, so we moved him around to all four secondary positions."

Baarman was used at weakside cornerback last spring. "I thought I had a good spring," Baarman says, "so I was frustrated to report back in the fall and be running second." Baarman had dropped to second string because of the outstanding play of converted fullback Carl Rosser during spring drills.

When this season opened, Baarman was on the second team, filling in at both strong safety and weak corner. Merritt was on the third team, playing on the kickoff and punt teams in home games, but not making the road trips. Baarman was frustrated. Merritt was frustrated. And then the Falcons suffered through their four frustrating losses by a total of eight points.

The changes were made before the Western Michigan game. "I moved back to strong safety," Baarman says, "and it gave me confidence. I feel more comfortable there because that's where I played in junior college. I have a better feel for things from there."

Merritt got an inkling that his status would be changing early in the week. "Coach Cartwright had been encouraging me all along to keep working. It was a rough time for me. I had become discouraged, but I never lost confidence. There were a lot of people pulling for me — my family, my girlfriend, my teammates, and the coaches."

The line-up changes paid immediate dividends. Baarman was in on 14 tackles and intercepted a pass, and Merritt made nine tackles, caused a fumble and broke up a pass as the Falcons defeated Western Michigan, 17-14. With Baarman and Merritt in the line-up, the defense continued to excel as the Falcons held Toledo and Kent State to a total of nine points.

"Jim and Joe are two of our best learners," Cartwright says. Neither one has the outstanding speed that coaches look for in their defensive backs, but they have been able to overcome this limitation. "They have such great comprehension and desire," Cartwright says. "They throw their bodies around, and it has a contagious effect on our defense."

As their senior seasons wind down, Baarman and Merritt have one goal left. Merritt speaks for both of them when he says, "we would like to go out as champions."

BG's Swimmin' Women Seek 8th Title

On cold, dark January mornings, two hours before the stars disappear, Cooper Pool in the Student Recreation Center is lighted and occupied.

It's one more day of training for Bowling Green's champion women's swimming team, which has won seven consecutive state championships and posted a dual meet record of 66-8-1 in its 12 years of existence. Last year alone, 15 school records were broken. Along with Coach Charles Simpsons' women's gymnastics team, the swimming team has become a symbol of the increased importance given to women's athletics since the women's program merged with the men's four years ago.

No other athletic team at Bowling Green — men's or women's — can match the women's swimming team in its dominance of other Ohio schools.

Even after losing dual meets last season to Ohio State and Cincinnati, Coach Tom Stubbs' team left both the Buckeyes and Bearcats far behind in their wake at the state championship at Cleveland State. Most of the swimmers who brought home Bowling Green's seventh consecutive state title are back this season.

The Falcons open their season next weekend when they host the BG Relays at Cooper Pool.

No longer is the state championship a lofty goal. Now it's an expectation.

"We have one major goal, and nothing else is acceptable," Stubbs says matter-of-factly. "If we continue to improve through the season, I see no reason why we can't stay where we are."

Understanding the success of this team begins with tradition. Jean Campbell coached Bowling Green's first teams, leading the Falcons to four state championships before retiring in 1976. She brought in good swimmers who created winning teams, and made the transition of coaches that much easier when Stubbs took over.

Stubbs had been assisting with the women's program while coaching the men's team. He took a team that was outstanding in short events, but just fair in distance events, and made it outstanding in all events. Stubbs and assistant coaches Sandy Cox and Chuck O'Brien developed the depth that is so good now that Bowling Green's fourth best swimmer in some events would challenge for a state championship if not for her teammates.

The real success of this team, however, stems from the people who put in the work. Stubbs' most difficult practice sessions don't come prior to the season. They take place right in the middle of the season. Three weeks before the state championships, in late January, Stubbs makes his swimmers work on speed and technique for an hour in the morning and two hours in the afternoon. He also works them on the Universal weight machine for 30 minutes in between. Cincinnati beat Bowling Green 74-57 in their dual meet last season, but it was a tired group of Falcons that lost.

"Maybe most coaches don't do it our way, but our one big meet each year is the state championship," Stubbs explains. "Don't get me wrong. Dual meets are important, and we're out to win them. But we're also out to be in the best condition possible when the state meet gets here. If that means we have to sacrifice a dual meet, then we'll do it."

Stubbs has the unique opportunity of pitting his women's swim team against Bowling Green's men in practice each day. That's the best competition the women's team faces all season, and there's more than one event in which the women give the men a good race.

"An athlete in swimming shouldn't be treated differently just because that athlete happens to be a girl," Stubbs insists. "When we practice, we're one team, not two. That helps our women."

"I never felt it was right to treat girls as inferior athletes. From the time they leave junior high school they get the short end of the stick in athletics. But not this team. They're willing to put in the dedication that has made them champions."

One Bowling Green All-American who almost left her athletic career behind in high school was Holly Oberlin, who graduated this past year after being named All-America for the second time in her career last March. She came to Bowling Green assuming she had ended her competitive swimming career in high school. Then she was talked into competing, and the result was that Bowling Green produced a two-time All-American.

"The people made it great," Oberlin says about the swimming team. "We were so close, and we pulled for each other so much that it made us a great team. I'm convinced that a big reason Bowling Green doesn't lose is because of the spirit on the team."

That's an opinion shared by two people who will try to continue Bowling Green's tradition this winter, co-captains Nancy Hinders and Cathy Bujorian. Both maintain that the will to win, and not tremendous talent, is what separates Bowling Green from everyone else.

"Holly Oberlin is a good example of a swimmer who was average to begin with, and just kept improving to the point she became All-America," Bujorian says. "If you look at the swimmers at other schools, many of their best times come in their freshman or sophomore years. At Bowling Green, our seniors always seem to be the best. Everyone looks up to the seniors. It makes them work harder."

Adds Hinders, "It's a combination of things. We do have good swimmers, and we work extremely hard, but it's the spirit that seems to carry us through meets. There are no cliques, no petty jealousies. We cheer for each other, and help each other, and we win. It's that simple."

Realistically, this Camelot atmosphere has to give way one day to a defeat. Someone, sometime, will surely produce a team good enough to end Bowling Green's reign over the state.

"Yes, that probably will happen," Stubbs says. "It could come at any time. No one wins forever. But the day we get bumped out of first place, we'll get right back in there and try to get it back."

First, however, someone has to take it away. And that might be hardest of all.
